

ACADEMIC PROGRAM REVIEW

EXTERNAL CONSULTANT NOMINATION FORM

Instructions

As part of the academic program review process, programs are asked to nominate individuals to serve as external consultants who will (1) review the program's self-study and other materials, (2) participate in a campus site visit to meet with program representatives and university leadership, and (3) compile their observations and recommendations in a written report to inform future planning efforts. Such individuals, by virtue of their relevant experience and expertise, must be able to offer appropriate recommendations for program improvement. Before nominating an individual to serve as an external consultant, please carefully review the university's criteria for selection, provided by Academic Program Quality.

At least one external consultant per site visit is required, but a team of two to three is recommended. Whatever the number, it is important that individuals or members of an external consultant team collectively possess appropriate expertise to evaluate all of the subdisciplines and areas of specialization represented in the program or programs under review.

In order to secure the desired number of external consultants for a given site visit, an appropriately sized pool of nominees must be identified. For example, if a team of two external consultants is the target, the names and required information of at least five individuals should be submitted for consideration.

For each nominee, a link to a current curriculum vitae must be included. Please do not make contact with potential nominees to request this information or for any other reason related to the academic program review process. If a nominee's curriculum vitae is not available on the web, please provide a link to a comparable substitute (e.g., a biographical sketch from a department website).
